ATTORNEY GENERAL RAOUL ENCOURAGES COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES TO INCLUDE VOTER REGISTRATION ACTIVITIES IN WORK-STUDY PROGRAMS

New Guidance Allows Federal Work-Study Funds to Support Students Engaged in Voter Registration Efforts

Chicago — Attorney General Kwame Raoul sent a letter to the administrators of Illinois colleges and universities highlighting new guidance from the U.S. Department of Education that allows students to be paid through the Federal Work-Study program for working to register voters.

The Federal Work-Study program provides part-time jobs for undergraduate and graduate students with financial need, allowing them to earn money to help pay education expenses. The program encourages community service work and work related to the student's course of study, whenever possible. The department's new guidance allows students to be paid with work-study funds for participation in voter registration activities.

"As we approach the 2022 election, it is vital that young people have a voice in the direction of our nation by exercising their fundamental right to vote," Raoul said. "This guidance offers a way to engage students in the democratic process and instill a lifelong commitment to civic participation. I encourage colleges and universities to use this new tool to promote voter registration on Illinois campuses and in the surrounding communities."

Raoul's letter outlines the department's guidance on permissible uses of work-study funds to support voter registration activities. For example, institutions may use work-study funds to compensate students for voter registration activities that occur on or off campus. Work-study funds cannot be used for employment by third parties – including federal, state or local agencies and private non-profit organizations – if the student's work relates to partisan or nonpartisan political activities, including party-affiliated voter registration.

Voter registration activities must comply with Illinois law, including local rules. Institutions or students planning voter registration activities should contact their local election authority to ensure compliance with any local rules regarding the collection and submission of voter registration forms. Local election authorities for each jurisdiction are listed on the State Board of Elections website.

g the most and can least afford to lose money.

"Consumers rely on accurate information to make decisions that are in their best financial interest. When companies attempt to manipulate the marketplace with intentionally misleading claims, consumers suffer and pay the price," Raoul said. "I would like to thank the FTC for their continuous partnership as we work to protect the public from fraud and deceptive business practices."

In their lawsuit, filed today in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, Raoul and the coalition allege that Roomster, along with Shriber and Zaks, used fake reviews and other misrepresentations to lure consumers to its platform to pay for access to listings that often turned out to be fake. The complaint also alleges that Jonathan Martinez – doing business as AppWinn – deceptively promoted the Roomster platform by providing tens of thousands of fake four- and five-star reviews. As part of a proposed order with the FTC and its state partners, Jonathan Martinez will be required to pay $100,000 and cooperate in the case against Roomster.

Many consumers rely on reviews when deciding whether to purchase a product or service. Fake reviews distort the marketplace and make it difficult for consumers to make informed decisions. Last year, the FTC put hundreds of firms on notice that they could face significant financial penalties if they use fake reviews or other deceptive endorsements to promote their products or services.

In the lawsuit, Raoul and the coalition allege that Roomster and its owners:

- Post fake positive reviews. Roomster’s operators, with the help of Martinez, have saturated the internet with tens of thousands of four- and five-star fake reviews, which dilute negative reviews posted by real consumers, some of whom warn that many of Roomster’s listings are fake. The complaint alleges that Roomster’s operators told Martinez to take steps to make the reviews look real. For example, Shriber urged Martinez to spread out the reviews so they were “constant and random.”
- Claim to offer verified and authentic listings. Roomster misrepresents that it offers millions of “verified listings” when in fact the company does not verify listings or ensure they are legitimate and authentic. For example, the FTC’s investigation found that the company immediately accepted and published a fake listing for a fictional apartment at the same address as a U.S. Postal Service commercial facility.
- Use fake listings to attract paid users. Roomster has advertised on internet sites like Craigslist using fake listings that drive consumers to Roomster’s platform. Once on the site, consumers paid fees to obtain information necessary to secure the listings, only to discover that the listings didn’t even exist. In addition, after signing up for Roomster’s service, consumers complain they are often bombarded by fraudsters with more fake listings.

As part of the proposed stipulated final order with the coalition, Jonathan Martinez is required to pay a total of $100,000 to participating states; cooperate in the ongoing case against Roomster and its owners; stop selling reviews; and notify the Apple and Google app stores regarding his involvement in posting fake reviews for Roomster.

Joining Raoul in filing today’s lawsuit is the FTC and the attorneys general of California, Colorado, Florida, Massachusetts and New York.

Re: Use of student work study funds for voter registration

Dear Administrators of Illinois Colleges and Universities:

I write to inform you of a new opportunity this academic year to encourage student participation in our democracy. This spring, the U.S. Department of Education issued guidance stating that federal work study funds may be used to support voter registration work.¹ Postsecondary institutions already play a critical role in expanding access to voter registration under the federal Higher Education Act and the Illinois Election Code. This new guidance offers an additional way to engage students in the democratic process and instill a lifelong commitment to civic participation.

The Department's guidance outlines permissible uses of work study funds to support voter registration activities:

- Institutions may use work study funds to compensate students for voter registration activities that occur on or off-campus.
- Students employed by a postsecondary institution may receive work study funds as compensation for voter registration work.
- Work study funds cannot be used for employment by third parties, including federal, state, or local agencies and private non-profit organizations, if the student's work relates to partisan or nonpartisan political activities, including party-affiliated voter registration.²

Voter registration activities must comply with Illinois law, including local rules governing appointment of deputy registrars³ and the state requirement that organizations conducting voter registration drives must file a distribution plan with the State Board of Elections if they plan to

The FTC brings this action under Section 13(b) of the Federal Trade Commission Act (“FTC Act”), 15 U.S.C. § 53(b), which authorizes the FTC to seek, and the Court to order, permanent injunctive relief and other relief for Defendants’ acts or practices in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 45(a).

These state laws authorize the Plaintiff States to seek, and the Court to order, temporary, preliminary, and permanent injunctive relief, rescission or reformation of contracts, restitution, the refund of monies paid, disgorgement of ill-gotten monies, and other equitable relief for Defendants’ state law violations. These laws also authorize the Plaintiff States to obtain civil penalties, attorneys’ fees, expenses, and costs.

SUMMARY OF CASE

3. Roomster Corp., John Shriber, and Roman Zaks (the “Roomster Defendants”) operate an internet-based room and roommate finder platform called “Roomster.” Since at least 2016, the Roomster Defendants, with the help of Defendant Jonathan Martinez also doing business as AppWinn (“Martinez”), have inundated the internet with tens of thousands of fake positive reviews to bolster their false claims that properties listed on their Roomster platform are real, available, and verified. In addition, the Roomster Defendants, either directly or through their affiliates, have peppered the internet with fake listings to drive traffic to their platform.

4. Although the Roomster Defendants claim that their Roomster platform provides “verified” and “authentic” living arrangement listings, in many instances it does not. Instead, the Roomster Defendants rely on fake reviews (thousands of which were purchased from Defendant Martinez alone) and fake listings to get consumers to pay for access to rental information that is unverified and, in many instances, does not exist.

5. In this manner, the Roomster Defendants have taken tens of millions of dollars from consumers who can least afford to lose their money and who need reliable housing the most. Consumers injured by Defendants' conduct are typically students, lower-income individuals, and those desperate for safe, low-cost housing in markets where such housing is extremely hard to find. According to the Roomster Defendants, Roomster customers are in the lowest end of the rental market, they generally have limited funds, and every dollar counts.

6. In addition, the Roomster Defendants' misrepresentations about the authenticity of their Roomster listings have lured these same consumers into paying substantially more money to fraudsters who have flooded the Roomster platform with their own fake and unverified listings. During the pandemic, these rental listing scammers have had free rein to exploit the platform, with many fraudsters attempting to collect deposits or rental payments upfront under the guise that COVID-19 prevents them from showing the properties.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

At all times relevant to this Complaint, acting alone or in concert with others, he has provided fake reviews for the Roomster Defendants’ platform. Defendant Martinez resides in California and, in connection with the matters alleged herein, transacts or has transacted business in this District and throughout the United States.

COMMERCE

20. At all times relevant to this Complaint, Defendants have maintained a substantial course of trade in or affecting commerce, as “commerce” is defined in Section 4 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 44, and as trade or commerce is defined in Plaintiff States’ statutes.

DEFENDANTS’ BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

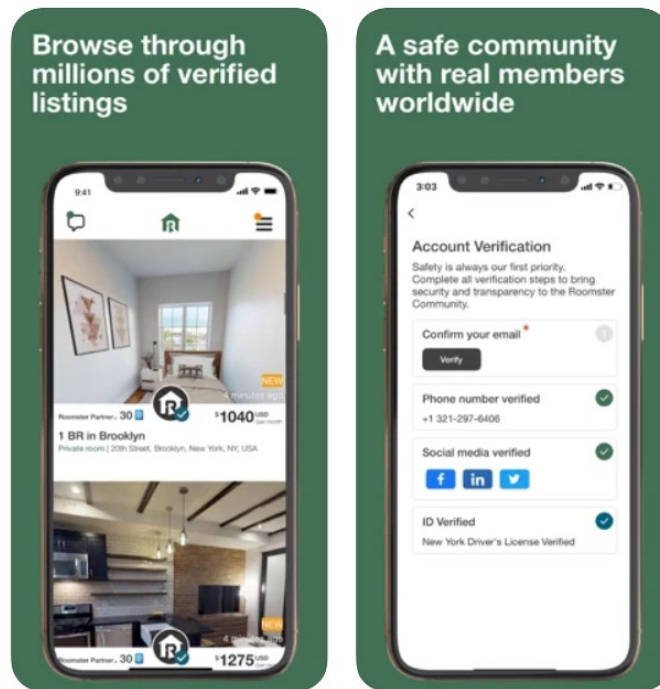

21. The Roomster Defendants advertise that their Roomster platform, available through their website and corresponding mobile applications, allows users to post and search listings for living arrangements, including rental properties, room rentals, sublets, and roommate requests.

22. The Roomster Defendants claim that the listings provided on their platform are real, available, and verified. These representations have been published to millions of people.

23. In numerous instances and on various locations on their website, the Roomster Defendants state that Roomster has “authentic” listings and that the Roomster Defendants “mak[e] sure the Roomster profiles and the listings on the site are complete, accurate, updated and yes...authentic.”

24. Similarly, until they received notice of this investigation, the Roomster Defendants claimed on their mobile device applications to have “millions of verified listings” in a “safe community with real members worldwide:”

25. In reality, the Roomster Defendants do not verify listings or ensure that their listings are real or authentic. The Roomster Defendants post listings on their Roomster platform immediately upon request, as long as the street address associated with the listing is recognized by the platform. The Roomster Defendants do not determine whether their listings are authentic and, despite purporting to offer only residential listings, do not verify whether the listed address is residential or commercial.

26. For example, an undercover investigation shows that the Roomster Defendants immediately accepted and published a fake listing with a U.S. Postal Office commercial facility address. The fake listing also contained fictitious rental specifications that included an apartment at less than half the price and twice the square footage as those in the represented market. That listing has remained active for several months. The Roomster Defendants have not contacted the lister to verify the address, the specifications, or the legitimacy of the email or other personal information of the lister.

27. To lend credence to their misrepresentations that their listings are authentic and verified, the Roomster Defendants, often with the help of Defendant Martinez, saturate the internet with tens of thousands of 4 and 5 star fake reviews, including through app stores, where the Roomster Defendants do most of their business.

28. App stores provide mobile application users the opportunity to leave customer reviews. Reviews provide a forum for sharing authentic feedback so consumers can make informed decisions about the products and services they use. Fictitious reviews distort the market. They are also illegal.

29. Contrary to the law and app store terms of service that prohibit manipulating reviews or ratings, inflating rankings or ratings with paid, incentivized, fraudulent, or fake reviews or feedback, or otherwise cheating the system, the Roomster Defendants, directly and through others, including Martinez, posted mass quantities of positive reviews.

30. Although the Roomster Defendants claim they do not pay for reviews, the Roomster Defendants bought over 20,000 reviews from Defendant Martinez alone.

31. Defendant Martinez utilized more than 2,500 fake iTunes accounts, as well as fake gmail accounts, to push out fake reviews on Roomster's apps. Before Martinez became aware of this investigation, his website stated "Buy app reviews & boost your app ranking." By selling fake reviews to the Roomster Defendants, Defendant Martinez helped the Roomster Defendants distort the market and deceive potential users of the Roomster platform.

32. For over four years, the Roomster Defendants engaged in what Defendant Martinez referred to as “drip campaigns,” which involve “the steady flow of reviews.” The Roomster Defendants only paid for fake reviews that “stuck” (i.e., those that passed app store algorithms and were visible to consumers). At various times, Defendant Martinez told Defendants Shriber and Zaks that fake reviews had to be “dripped” at a “slower pace” because many were not “sticking.”

33. Similarly, Defendant Shriber directed Defendant Martinez to spread out the reviews to be “constant and random.”

34. In addition, Defendant Shriber instructed Defendant Martinez to produce “lots of 5 star IOS app reviews” and stated that he “would like to be #1” for people searching for roommates.

35. Along with the drip campaigns, Defendants also blasted hundreds of reviews at once when it suited their purposes. For example, Defendant Shriber stated “I need to get to the top of ‘rooms for rent’. [W]hat can be done?” Defendant Martinez responded, “We can blast 100-200 reviews for that keyword to get some movement.”

36. The Roomster Defendants also required that fictitious reviews post in random amounts. For example, they emailed Defendant Martinez the following:

We are ready to place an order. 500 reviews for iTunes and 300 for Android for US market.

Post a random number every day and no more then [sic] 20 for iTunes, 15 for Android, please.

37. The Roomster Defendants also directed that reviews post in random amounts for several countries across the globe, specifying in their orders how many reviews should go to each country. For example, in one email alone, the Roomster Defendants directed Defendant Martinez as follows:

Total number of reviews for iTunes platform shouldn't exceed [sic] 50 per day.

Please, post a random number of reviews between 18 - 30
US market - 500

500 for markets from this list

random number of reviews between 4 - 10:

Australia - 50

Norway - 50

random number of reviews between 1 - 8:

Austria - 20

Belgium - 20

Bulgaria - 20

Croatia - 20

Czech Republic - 20

Denmark - 20

Estonia - 20

Finland - 20

France - 20

Germany - 20

Greece - 20

Hungary - 20

Ireland - 20

Italy - 20

Latvia - 20

Lithuania - 20

Luxembourg - 20

Macedonia - 20

Moldova - 20

Netherlands - 20

38. Even after receiving notice of the FTC's investigation, the Roomster Defendants continued to instruct that reviews post in random amounts in order to appear natural, at one point emailing Defendant Martinez:

Just as a reminder, please make sure it's always a random number of reviews, so it looks more natural.

39. Examples of 5-star reviews that the Roomster Defendants bought include:

- a. Wonderful!
Roomster is better than others. Very easy to use. Tons of listing. No scammers, all users are real. Easy to communicate with owners. In a single word FANTASTIC!
- b. Awesome!
I found Roomster very useful for students who are searching for a place to live or friends to live with. It gives reasonable price, a lot of useful suggestions.
- c. Roomster is great!

- k. Excellent!
Good job ..lots of users ...very useful to find genuine users ..no time wastage with brokers. Excellent!
- l. So useful!
Roomster is really excellent. Best app for finding rooms & roommates shortly. So useful & very fast.

40. The reviews in Paragraph 39 were fabricated.

41. The sheer volume of the Roomster Defendants' fake reviews dilutes reviews from real users, such as the following 1-star reviews:

- a. Full of scammers
I highly highly suggest that you do not use this site!
Because you will get scammed. This app is loaded with people trying to scam you! Out of every 10 post 8 are scammers DO NOT USE THIS APP!!
- b. Don't waste your time
I couldn't give it zero. It won't let me view things so I got a 7 day subscription. Reached out to 38 listers. Got response from only 1 legitimate lister. The rest was all scam and 5 days of headache. Steer clear. They don't vet
- c. Worst app ever waste of money
If I could give a negative 100 star I would. Idk of all those good reviews are fakes too or what. But I literally reach out to atleast 50-60 people and I received few msg offering a place. And all of them just fake. Same exact email you give the deposit and first month rent and they will mail you the key. Cause they "at funeral, in different country, traveling, blah blah blah blah." Cause honestly if you make a app specific for room rental then should be vetted or something, not 99.9 fake once's, and now they spamming craigslist with their fake posts. I used AirBnB which is free to use and never had issue with them. They really need to change this website ASAP. I bet all of these 5 star reviews are all fake. How many people I know they all say the same about this website.

d. Scams

This site is full of scams. I have been contacted by multiple people on this app saying they can't show me the room because they're out of town but that I should send them the deposit and they'll send me the key. It's the same storyline every time. They also have bugs on Craigslist. There are listings on Craigslist that I email n they email back telling me to sign up for roomies [Roomster] and nothing else. A very disappointing app

e. too bad

most information are fake, administrator dont have any rules to prevent this issue. after i request renting from someone, she/he ask me for giftcard payment. ridiculous!!!

f. Fake Scam Beware!

This app charges you 7.95 then 24.95 then another 24.95. There's absolutely no rooms. They are all scams! They don't message back and refuse to give you your money back. I can't believe this app is allowed. Please Do Not Download it! They lie, cheat and steal your $ with no return.

g. Rip Off

This site is full of fake ads to get you to pay $7.99 per week. They lure you in on Craigslist with an enticing ad and the only way to communicate is to sign up and pay. Funny thing is, they never answer. :((

h. You thought !

Worst app ever tons of scam artists it's a fake app do not waste your money do not contact anyone it is a scam app people will try and hack your phone do not buy this app or download it beware

i. Scam

This app is garbage. I had higher hopes but it completely let me down. Every profile on here seems to be a fake profile and every message I got from people said almost exactly the same thing. Not worth it.

42. To further induce consumers to pay for their Roomster platform, the Roomster Defendants, either directly or through their affiliates, bait the internet with advertisements for fake listings, including on Craigslist. Through these fake listings, consumers are directed to Defendants' platform and encouraged to sign up and pay a fee to obtain information necessary to secure the rental. Consumers who sign up soon learn that the listings that drove them to the Roomster Defendants' platform do not exist.

43. In addition, consumers are soon bombarded by fraudsters with more fake listings and are asked to pay hundreds or thousands of dollars to secure a rental, sight unseen, often under the guise that COVID-19 prevents the lister from showing the property.

44. The Roomster Defendants have taken in excess of $27 million from consumers, many of whom can least afford to lose money. According to Defendant Zaks, "a Roomster customer is an individual in the lowest end of the rental market, they generally have limited funds, and every dollar counts." Similarly, according to Defendant Shriber, the Roomster Defendants "are servicing the most affordable end of the [r]eal estate market. Searching for housing is stressful in all price points, but for Roomster customers even more so . . . generally for financial reasons. For Roomster customers every penny counts." Compounding that injury, consumers have paid hundreds and even thousands of dollars more to fraudsters who take advantage of the Roomster Defendants' non-existent verification protocols.

45. Based on the facts and violations of law alleged in this Complaint, the FTC has reason to believe that the Roomster Defendants are violating or are about to violate laws enforced by the Commission, because, among other things, they engaged in their unlawful acts and practices repeatedly over a period of at least four years, they engaged in their unlawful acts and practices willfully and knowingly, and they continued their unlawful acts or practices despite knowledge of numerous complaints and this investigation.

46. In addition, based on the facts and violations of law alleged in this Complaint, the FTC has reason to believe that Defendant Martinez is violating or is about to violate laws enforced by the Commission because, among other things, he engaged in the unlawful acts and practices alleged repeatedly over a period of approximately four years, he did not cease doing business with the Roomster Defendants until after the FTC began its investigation, and Martinez has provided the same or similar services for other businesses.
